【授業内容とその進め方】

The first 30 to 40 minutes of most classes will be used for extensive reading. The word "extensive" just means "a lot of," so "extensive reading" means "a lot of reading." I will bring many books to class, from which students can choose material to read. Students may also borrow books if they would like more reading practice.

The rest of the class time will be used in two different ways. In some classes, we will do simple discussion and writing activities related to different topics. (I will ask students to choose topics that they are most interested in.) Students will also write about these topics in their journals. In other classes, students will learn how to explain a graph or chart, how to explain a procedure, and how to express a sound argument or opinion in written English.

【授業時間外の学習（予習・復習等）】

Journal: Students should buy a B5 size notebook to use as their journal. (Students who were in Academic Written English I with me should continue using the same notebook.) I will give students questions to answer in their journals. Students should write at least one or two pages, depending on the size of their handwriting, for each journal assignment. Every few weeks, I will collect the journals and respond to what each student has written.

There will also be other writing assignments. These will involve writing two kinds of explanation and writing an argument.

Students may also borrow books to read outside class.
