【授業内容とその進め方】

The class will be organized around a particular theme, the theme of U.S. imperialism and how it impacts other countries in the world, including Japan. Students will be assigned readings as homework, which will come from the textbook and other sources. The readings will be fairly short and students should be able to complete them in about one hour. There will be a question period at the start of each class, about 20 or 30 minutes, during which I will answer questions about the vocabulary and content of the assigned reading. Following the question period, students will discuss the readings in groups of three to four. However, as it is often difficult to participate in an oral discussion in a foreign language, and in order to develop writing fluency, these discussions will be conducted on the computer using chat software. Students will be asked to keep a weekly journal, in which they write their opinions about the reading and the discussion. Finally, students will turn in two essays, one at the middle of the semester and one at the end, in which they answer a question given by the teacher. Students will receive feedback related to the content of the essay and will be asked to revise the essay on the basis of this feedback.

【成績評価方法及び評価基準(最低達成基準を含む)】

Grades will be based on participation in the chat discussions, on the weekly journal, and on the two essays. Participation in the chat discussions will be worth 30% of the grade. The weekly journal will also be worth 30% of the grade. Each essay will be worth 20% of the grade, or 40% for both. Students who miss more than four classes will not be able to pass. Being late three times will be treated as one absence. (If students have a legitimate reason for being late or absent, it is their responsibility to inform me.)
